Dr. Pierce's GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY Restores LOST FLESH AND STRENGTH

"I was a total wreck—could not sleep or eat, and I was losing weight rapidly. I tried many doctors but received very little benefit. I had lost all my strength and was unable to do any work. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle I could sleep and eat and my appetite was wonderfully improved. I have taken five bottles and am still improving."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; you lose. Therefore, accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

THE HARTFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT THE ORIGINAL LIVER MEDICINE

A yellow complexion, dizziness, biliousness and a coated tongue are common indications of liver and kidney diseases. Stomach and bowel troubles, severe as they are,
give immediate warning by pain,
but liver and kidney troubles, though less painful at the start, are much harder to cure. The Hartford's Black-Draught never fails to benefit diseased liver and weakened kidneys. It stimulates the torpid liver to throw off the germs of fever and ague. It is a certain preventive of cholera and Bright's disease of the kidneys. With kidneys reinforced by The Hartford's Black-Draught thousands of persons have dwelt immune in the midst of yellow fever. Many families live in perfect health and have no other doctor than The Hartford's Black-Draught. It is always on hand for use in an emergency and saves many expensive calls of a doctor.

Julius, S. C., March 10, 1901.
I have used The Hartford's Black-Draught for three years and have not had to go to a doctor since I have been taking it.
It is the best medicine for me that is on the market for liver and kidney troubles and dyspepsia and other complaints. Rev. A. G. LEWIS.

If Tom Reed is not remembered as a great legislator, he will be honored for making legislation possible in the popular branch of Congress.

EDITOR Stone's Grayson Leader has a heap of mighty good prose and a little mighty bad poetry, but his readers shouldn't shoot him for his poetry, yet. He just recently jined the quilldrivers.

The Seventh Senatorial District Committee will meet at Beaver Dam, Monday, December 15, for the purpose of determining the time and manner of holding a convention to nominate a candidate for State Senator.

JUDGE Miller and Esquire Martin are favorable to a more practical and sensible system of working our roads. We are not advised as to the views on the question of the other Justices, but if your Justice does not favor a better system for road working, you should urge upon him the importance of the question before the January term.

COL. C. M. BARNETT is in Washington this week and the Courier-Journal's irresponsible Washington correspondent telegraphed that paper Sunday that Col. Barnett was to be ousted from the office of Surveyor of the Port and that Senator Deboe was to take his place, and when he found that nobody would take his fake story seriously enough to even deny it, he telegraphed his paper again that Col. Barnett would retain his office, but would resign the chairmanship of the State Central Committee. Mr. Barnett authorized the Herald-Commercial to say that he had no intention of resigning the chairmanship, and the Courier-Journal's correspondent turned his fake gun upon new game.

The suggestion of Col. C. M. Barnett for the Republican nomination for Governor next year, is being favorably discussed by the Republican leaders of the State, notwithstanding his positive statement that he is not a candidate. Col. Barnett's cautious and conservative course in politics has won for him the confidence of the party, and these are the very elements that should enter into the makeup of the Republican candidate for Governor. Notwithstanding he was the head of the Republican organization in the State, and the incumbent of an important Federal office through the stormiest period of the party's internal strife, he, by following the very profitable work of minding his own business, maintained the confidence and good will of each of the factions, and would, on this account, make the strongest candidate the Republicans could nominate next year. But it is another evidence of his fitness for such a candidacy, as well as a credit to his worth as a man, that he fittingly recognizes the generous recognition his party has shown him, and modestly declines to stand in the way of other worthy and deserving Republicans.

RINGO AND THE PRIMARY.

At the recent meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee that called the primary election to nominate candidates for State offices, candidate Ringo was in the middle of a very bad fix. Mr. Ringo belongs to the Goebel faction of the Democratic party—he signed a petition to Goebel to contest Taylor's election—and is necessarily for Beckham for the nomination for Governor. Beckham, being able to assess his appointees, can very well afford the expense of a $10,000 primary, which will force his opponents out, and wanted a primary.

Being an ex-officio member of the Beckham machine, Mr. Ringo was afraid to oppose Mr. Beckham's primary. Being himself a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney in a district in which lives Urey Woodson, member of the Democratic National Committee, personal friend of Bryan and editor of the only influential Democratic newspaper in the district, who is violently opposing Beckham's primary plan to fix the price so high for the nomination for Governor that nobody will be able to bid against him on the day of the sale, May 9, 1903, Ben was between the devil and the deep blue sea. It was a case of "be damned if you do and be damned if you don't."

But Ben proved himself a politician of that class that fly high and fall soon, by getting on both sides of the question. He told the Beckham crowd that he was heartily in favor of fixing the price so high that no other Democrat could afford to bid against Beckham for the nomination, if they would set the day of sale for July instead of May. His object was, of course, not to go on record in favor of the primary.

Now Mr. Ringo can say to the Beckham crowd, I told you fellows I was heartily in favor of the primary and voted against it only on account of the date it was fixed for, and would have voted for it anyhow had my vote been necessary to have carried the measure; and then you fellows are my friends, and know how Woodson is raising hell down there about the primary, and being a candidate, I can't afford to antagonize him, unless it was absolutely necessary to do so for Beckham to freeze out the other fellows. And he can say to Woodson, just look at the record and you will see I voted against calling the primary.

In fact, we give Mr. Ringo credit—that is, a certain kind of credit—for turning a pretty slick trick, but we doubt whether the voters of the district will be in favor of a slick trick-turner for Commonwealth's Attorney.

NO POOR MAN NEED APPLY.

A multiplicity of editors of the Hartford Herald, recently, is making that paper a little more ridiculous than usual. Last week Mr. Ringo did the editorial work for that paper, and, notwithstanding, he, as a member of the Democratic State Central Committee, had voted against it, he made the Herald say that the State primary was the newest and best thing out, and that the Democrats everywhere were whooping wild in favor of it. But, this week, our friend, Matthews, is back from his vacation, and he makes this same Herald weep floods of tears over the "disruption that has come into the Democratic party of Kentucky over the recent action of the State Central Committee in ordering a State primary."

Again, this Matthews Herald makes an admission the Ringo Herald would not make. It says: "The primary is handicapped by the large expense and the consequent liability of anybody serving a man of considerable means entering the race."

Ah, there! No poor man need apply. What do the poor but honest Democrats of Kentucky think of this declaration from a paper that is supporting the call for the rich man's primary?

Party loyalty, party service, personal merit and fitness count for naught in the Democratic party, unless the possessor of all these merits is happily the possessor also of considerable means. Are the Democrats of Kentucky laying—in this primary—the foundation of a moneyed aristocracy to rule the Commonwealth? And are the honest but poor Democratic farmers and mechanics of Kentucky ready to accept such slavery? Are they willing to establish a precedent that will forever bar themselves and their descendants, who do not have the good fortune to accumulate considerable means, from holding offices of profit and honor in the proud old Commonwealth? We shall see.

Tom Reed Dead.

Thomas B. Reed, America's great political journalist, who made legislation possible in the Lower House of Congress, died of Bright's disease at Washington, Sunday morning. His remains were taken to his old home at Portland, Maine, for interment.

In this issue of THE REPUBLICAN appears the announcement of Mr. F. L. SANDERFUR for the Republican nomination for Circuit Court Clerk. Mr. Sanderfur is a very capable and deserving young man. He is well known to the Republicans of Ohio county, having made the race for the nomination for this office six years ago, when he came within a few votes of the nomination. Mr. Sanderfur's well known fitness for the duties of the office, his sturdy honesty and excellent character insure his election if the Republicans decide to make him their standard-bearer in the race for Circuit Court Clerk next year.

The Kind You Always Bought

Signature of Dr. J. C. Williams

Joe Mulhatten, the Louisville drummer, who for many years was regarded as the biggest liar in the world, and who went West and went crazy a few years ago, has turned up at Louisville right side up. Joe said

Slave To Morphine From Doctor's Orders.

Habit Worse Than the Disease.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Me.

When the nervous system has been shattered by the use of deadly drugs there is nothing to equal Dr. Miles' Nervine in restoring it to health and normal activity.

"I feel so grateful for what Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine has done for me that I must tell it for that part of humanity that suffers as I have. During the three years I suffered from nervous prostration I found no relief except when doctors gave me morphine, and now you point with scorn at me, saying, 'What a fool! What a slave to the habit! What a miserable creature!' I knew it was a terrible habit and I knew of its deadly grasp, but I never fully realized its significance until I had used it a number of months. Oh, the misery of being addicted to such a habit! I resolved, then, and there to quit it and resolved I would never be a slave to any such demon. About this time I happened to notice Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine advertised and ordered a bottle. After using five bottles I can truthfully say I am cured of using morphine. Now, however much persons may doubt it, God is my witness I am cured. This testimonial is unsolicited but I feel it my duty to give it for the benefit of the suffering."—MARTIE PHILLIPS, Prescott, Ark.

Read the announcement elsewhere in this issue of the candidacy of Mr. D. Baker Rhoads, of Beaver Dam, for the Republican nomination for State Senator. Mr. Rhoads is a well-known Republican, a gentleman of high character, and is well fitted for the duties of a legislator. Mr. Rhoads is an able young lawyer, and his familiarity with our laws and their defects would add much to his ability to serve the people in the upper house of the Kentucky Legislature. If the Republicans see cause to nominate Mr. Rhoads he will make an excellent candidate as well as a good legislator when elected.

The spring term of the West Kentucky Seminary, Beaver Dam, Ky., will open January 5, 1913, and continue five months. Superior advantages will be offered in High-school, Teachers', Commercial and Music courses. Special attention will be given those preparing for teacher's examination. Little Aubrey Dead.
Early Saturday morning the sweet, pure soul of little Aubrey Black felt upon his fevered cheek, the cooling kiss of God's conveying angel, and with it sped on wings of light and love to the gilded halls of its heavenly home.

Little Aubrey was the darling baby of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Black, and was about two years old. He died of heart trouble.

Having so recently stood sorrowfully amid the chilling shadows of the chamber of death we can join the heart bleeding parents in tears for their dead. And will say to them that in death's awful night when we, too, must cross that surging stream that those souls we loved and lost will stand upon that distant shore and hold aloft beacon lights to guide us unto God.

MAD DOGS

Bite Four People and Many Dogs in Ohio County.

Ohio county is having a mad dog scare that is becoming really alarming, and many people are in favor of a general dog killing.

About two weeks ago we reported the killing of a supposed mad dog at Centertown, but the incident excited little comment and was almost forgotten until Saturday morning when a rabid dog made its appearance in Hartford.

Early Saturday morning Mr. Wilbur Tinsley, a hardware dealer, was in S. T. Barnett & Co's meat shop when a strange dog entered the shop and made a furious attack on him. By vigorous use of his foot, the only assaulting weapon convenient, Mr. Tinsley finally drove the infuriated dog from the shop, but not until after it had bitten him on the leg.

The dog next appeared at the residence of Mr. Frank Westerfield, just out of town, on the Beaver Dam road, where it bit two of Mr. Westerfield's children. Mrs. Westerfield called upon her husband, who keeps a meat shop here, and told him of the incident, and said the dog had started back toward town. Marshall Paris and some other parties procured shot guns and started out to hunt the vicious dog. They found it lying on the pavement at Mr. J. H. Thomas' yard gate, and a few loads of shot soon put the dog out of the danger of further harm.

Monday morning Will Rogers, a farmer, living a few miles north of Dundee, was attacked by another mad dog, which inflicted a painful wound in his leg. The dog after biting Rogers came on through Dundee and Sulphur Springs, snapping at all the dogs, hogs and other animate beings that came in its way, until about two miles this side of Sulphur Springs it met Peyton Sullenger, a negro, in the public road, and rushed upon him with the awful fury of its madness. Fortunately Sullenger carried a gun and killed the maddened brute before it could bite him.

Immediately after he was bitten, Rogers came to Hartford to consult the physicians in regard to his wound. Unfortunately the medical profession is powerless for the treatment of persons infected with rabies. One of our best physicians says the only hope for one into whose blood the deadly virus has found its way, is to go at once to the Pasteur Institute at Chicago. This terrible disease had been regarded as hopelessly incurable until about fifteen years ago when M. Pasteur, a now world famous, but then unknown Paris physician, discovered a treatment by inoculation, and founded the Pasteur Institute at Paris for the treatment of persons affected with rabies. On account of the very great expense of maintaining one of these Institutes, and the comparatively small number of patients who apply for treatment, these institutions are not numerous in the world, and we believe that the Institute at Chicago is the only one in America.

Unlike the virus used for vaccination against smallpox, that used for the treatment of rabies will not keep, but must be propagated continuously in a living organism, and for this purpose a whole menagerie of monkeys is required each year.

It is claimed for the treatment, that all of the patients who begin the treatment at the Institute before the disease develops are cured, or rather that the development of the disease is prevented.

He Didn't Like It.

Mr. W. M. Fleener, a prosperous farmer living just above Cromwell, concluded last winter that the sun shone brighter and the birds sang sweeter in Oklahoma than in Kentucky, and he sold all his possessions and went out there in the spring to enjoy the sunshine and the song. But Mr. Fleener soon tired of sunshine and song and longed for his old home in Ohio county again, and wrote to Mr. R. B. Martin, asking what price he would make him on his old homestead which he had sold to Mr. Martin in January for $3,000. Mr. Martin wrote back "4,000." Within a few days the answer came back, "Make the deed, I'm coming." Mr. Fleener got back a few days ago, paid over the cash, and is now happy by his old fireside. Mr. Fleener is an excellent citizen and we welcome him back.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I had pains in my back, could not sleep and when I got up in the morning felt worse than the night before. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and now I can sleep and get up feeling rested and able to do my work. I attribute my cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. J. N. Perry, care H. S. Sick Blood

Feed pale girls on Scott's Emulsion.

We do not need to give all the reasons why Scott's Emulsion restores the strength and flesh and color of good health to those who suffer from sick blood.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the blood which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.

We will be glad to send a sample to any sufferer.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

WISCONSIN'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

A SPECIAL PROVIDENCE

By George F. Seymour

Late in the spring of 1884, on the old Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, which had been taken possession of by the military authorities, I was doing "spare" work, which meant that some day I would run a shifter in the yard and perhaps the next thing would take me on a train out over the road.

We didn't have very much in the way of "rolling stock" at that time, as the "Jennies" had run most of it away when they evacuated Nashville, and we were particularly short of good engines. One day I was sent out with an extra train and told to pull it down to Chattanooga with the shifter. This had been in its day a first class engine, but it was very old and had been patched and doctored up for use in the yard. We had a squad of soldiers for a guard, and orders had been given for everything to keep out of our way.

Several changes had been made on the road since I had been out, but the only one having anything to do with this story was with regard to a siding about two-thirds of the way down. This was a spur some thousand feet or so in length, running into a gravel pit. There was quite a gully between the main track and the siding, and the siding ran for some distance over a trestle. Some of the rails had been taken up and used to lengthen out another spur track farther down the road. The switch had been removed and the switch applied fast.

"We stopped at a water tank just this side of Stevenson. Here the lieutenant in charge said he had a wounded guerrilla, and, as he didn't know what to do with him, we would have to take him to Chattanooga with us. So he was carried into the conductor's car, at the rear of the train, and laid on the floor. It was now well along toward evening and growing dark very rapidly, more so than usual, as a thunderstorm was coming up. Before long it was up on us, and it was a terror. I rolled the old engine along for all she was worth, and as there was a pretty stiff grade on this part of the road we were making tolerably good time. About three-quarters of an hour after passing Stevenson the going gave the signal to stop. Never, before or since, did it send such a thrill through me. Before the sound of the bell had been swallowed in the roar of the storm I had whistled for the brakes and reversed the engine. I knew that this would be of little avail, for the rails were slippery as glass, the train was heavy and we were running down an eighty foot grade. Just then I changed to first back and saw Tom Gage, the conductor, climbing over the rear end of the tender. A moment later he was as white as a sheet. He shouted in my ear:

"How far are we from the old gravel pit siding? Tell me, quick!"

The fireman had come over to my side of the cab, and I motioned to him to answer the question. "A little more than 200 yards, I reckon. Why?"

"Why?" Tom repeated in a shout. "We're all of us going into the ditch; that's why! That guerrilla chap has just come to his senses, and he says his gang pulled out the spikes and then threw the switch, so as to open the siding, and that a whole lot of the gang are waiting there for us now. I'm going to climb down before we get there. So goodbye, boys! And, jumping to the side, he disappeared.

"Jump, Jim!" I cried to my fireman. "I'm going to stick here and take my chances, but you needn't!"

He looked at me steadily for a second, shook his head and turned to his own side of the cab. Our speed had now slackened, but not sufficiently to offer the slightest hope of our coming to a stop before reaching the fatal siding. And I remember now that I fell to calculating how long it would probably be until we struck the switch. I noticed that we seemed to be running into the heart of the storm. The lightning was terrific.

And now we were in the cut—just beyond it was the siding—and I knew that within the next three minutes the story would be told, for we were still running at a fair pace. As we came out of the cut the siding was in plain sight in the lightning, and I saw in a moment that the wounded man had told the truth, for the switch had been thrown over and no earthly power could save us from turning off to the left, passing over three or four sections of the trestle, and then, when we reached the end of the rails, pitching twenty-five or thirty feet down into the ravine.

Something prompted me to turn my eyes toward the other side of the track, and there I saw a group of men, ten or a dozen of them, all armed, crouching at the foot of the embankment. At the sight all my caution fled. I forgot all about the danger we were in. Drawing my revolver I emptied it into the midst of the group and had the satisfaction of seeing two of them tumble over. Then I threw the lever forward and pulled the throttle wide open, for now I was anxious to have the thing over with, and the end, whatever it might be, reached at once.

The train jumped ahead, and we were almost on the switch when I saw a bolt of lightning coming directly toward us. I say I saw it. I did not feel it, and that is all I know. The concussion that followed made the old engine rattle in every joint and almost jolt me from the cab.

When, a moment later, the realization of our position returned to me, I saw that the engine had passed over the switch. A minute later and the entire train was across, and then I knew that by some means which I could not understand we had escaped the trap that had been laid for us. A moment before we had reached it I had seen the open switch as distinctly as I ever saw anything in my life, and yet we passed over it in safety.

It was like a miracle. We pulled into Chattanooga about midnight. The assistant superintendent happened to be there, and early the next morning he sent for me.

"You seem to be the only man likely to give me a clear account of what last night's experience," he said. And when I had given it he added sharply, "You are certain you saw the open switch?"

"Yes, sir," I replied, "perfectly sure of it."

Then he turned to me suddenly and said:

"What was it that closed the switch and let you over?"

"I don't know more than I can say," I replied, "but something closed it and we would have gone out over the siding and then down into the gully."

"No doubt of that," he said; "none whatever. And you think a bolt of lightning which came at about this time?"

He paused significantly, then added: "Well, I want you to keep this matter entirely to yourself. Take the first train going north, make a thorough examination of the switch and find out, if you can, what closed it so suddenly. The next train coming this way will pick you up, and as soon as you arrive here report to me."

The assistant superintendent's suggestion about the lightning kept my brain busy during the trip. Could that dash have been the agency whereby we were turned from certain doom into the path of safety? I got the answer as soon as I arrived at the scene of our adventure and examined the switch. Not only had the switch been closed by being thrown violently into place, but the parts where they came together had been fused by the heat of the lightning into a mass so solid as to prevent the switch from ever being opened again.

Some may say it was nothing more than chance, others will call it good luck, but I never think of it without realizing that the bolt which struck the switch and forced it back into place came straight from him who "holds the lightning in his hands."

Artistic Monuments

COST NO MORE THAN PLAIN ONES IN White Bronze.

Marble is entirely out of date. Granite soon gets moss-grown, discolored, requires constant expense and care, and eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides, it is very expensive. White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It cannot crumble with the action of frost. More growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. Then why not investigate? It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted citizens in all parts of the country. It has been on the market over 25 years and is an established success. Many granite dealers have bought White Bronze for their own burial plots. We have hundreds of beautiful designs of all grades of work, and want to have you see them if you are interested in a monument, headstone, marker or grave-cover. On receipt of a postal card will be pleased to call with designs and sample of White Bronze.

Yours truly,

Mistaken Identity.

Slightly after George Forest Brush, the well known painter, had sold a $7,000 picture Mrs. Brush, whose delicate, spiritual face and old-fashioned gowns are familiar to the public through her husband's canvases, was looking one afternoon along Fifth avenue with her children. At an art store window the little group tarried. While gazing at the pictures a woman of distinguished presence and fashionable attire came out of the store. It was passing to her carriage the beauty of one of the Brush children attracted her attention. Calling the lad to her, she gave him some pennies. Then, meeting the wan, spirituelle face of the mother, the same face that shines out from that painted canvas "Mother and Child," awarded in Paris the gold medal and now the property of the Boston museum, the Lady Beautiful said solicitously, "My good woman, does your husband have plenty of work?" "Oh, yes, thank you," said Mrs. Brush humbly. "He is quite busy painting." The carriage door closed upon the beneficent lady, who went home doubtlessly inwardly patting herself for having shown sympathy for a poor house painter's wife—New York Press.

An Old Enemy.

Persons who rise in the world are not always as frank about the former place in life as good sense and humor might lead them to be. Dean Hole in his book of reminiscences, "Now and Then," tells a little story of one whose humor did not desert him in time of prosperity.

A footman who had begun life as a doctor's boy grew interested in the study of medicine and spent his leisure hours reading medical books. He came to the United States, worked hard as a student and as a physician for many years and attained a large practice.

After some years of absence he returned to England. Seated one day at luncheon with those whom he had formerly served, he suddenly astonished the company by holding up the mustard pot and addressing it with, "Hast thou found me, O mine enemy?"

Afterward he explained that the only reproach he had incurred from the lady who was then at the head of the table was evoked by the neglected condition of the mustard pot—Youth's Companion.
